

Call - Warrant on SMI® (Swiss Market Index)

PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Warrants are financial instruments which give the investor the right (not the obligation) to purchase (Call warrants) or sell (Put warrants) the underlying at the exercise price in return for payment of the exercise price during the exercise term (American) or on the expiry date (European), respectively. When exercising warrants with "physical delivery", the underlying is delivered by the issuer to the investor (Call warrants), or by the investor to the issuer (Put warrants); warrants with "cash settlement" grant the right – if they are in the money when exercising – to receive payment of the respective difference. With Call warrants, the investor relies on increasing prices of the underlying and with Put warrants on falling prices.

In Switzerland, these financial instruments are considered structured products. They are not collective investment schemes within the meaning of the Swiss Federal Act on Collective Investment Schemes (CISA), and are therefore not subject to the regulations of the CISA or the supervision of the Swiss Financial Market Supervisory Authority FINMA. The investors bear the issuer's or the guarantor's credit risk.

PROSPECTS OF PROFIT AND LOSSES

Warrants provide the opportunity to benefit in a leveraged way from a positive (Call warrants) or negative (Put warrants) performance of the underlying. The potential profit is, as a general rule, unlimited for call warrants; for Put warrants, the maximum potential profit is, however, limited and reached when the price of the underlying falls to zero. Price changes of the underlying may have an overproportionate impact on the value of the warrants due to the leverage effect. For warrants with a cash settlement entitlement, the settlement amount depends on the amount by which the valuation price of the underlying exceeds (Call warrants) or falls short of (Put warrants) the exercise price on the relevant exercise date. For warrants with physical delivery of securities, the price of the underlying delivered and the costs incurred must also be taken into account. Warrants do not yield current income. As a rule, they lose value if there is no price increase in the underlying for Call warrants or if there is no price loss in the underlying for Put warrants. At the end of the term, warrants expire worthless if they are not in the money, i.e. in this event the investor incurs a total loss of the capital he has invested.

SIGNIFICANT RISKS FOR INVESTORS

Currency risks

If the underlying(s) is(are) denominated in a currency other than the product's reference currency, investors should bear in mind that this may involve risks due to fluctuating exchange rates and that the risk of loss not only depends on the performance of the underlying(s) but also on any unfavourable performance of the other currency or currencies. This does not apply to currency-hedged products (quanto structure).

Market risks

The general market performance of securities is dependent in particular on the development of the capital markets which, for their part, are influenced by the general global economic situation as well as by the economic and political framework conditions in the respective countries ("market risk"). Changes to market prices such as interest rates, commodity prices or corresponding volatilities may have a negative effect on the valuation of the underlying(s) or the structured product. There is also a risk of market disruptions (such as trading or stock market interruptions or discontinuation of trading) or other unforeseeable occurrences concerning the respective underlyings and/or their stock exchanges or markets taking place during the term or upon maturity of the structured products. Such occurrences can have an effect on the time of redemption and/or on the value of the structured products.

In the event of trading restrictions, sanctions and similar occurrences, the issuer is entitled, for the purpose of calculating the value of the structured product, to include at its own discretion the underlying instruments at their most recently traded price, at a fair value to be established at its sole discretion or indeed as worthless, and/or additionally to suspend pricing in the structured product or liquidate the structured product prematurely.

Secondary market risks

Under normal market conditions, the issuer or the lead manager intend to post bid- and ask-prices on a regular basis. However, neither the issuer nor the lead manager is under any obligation with respect to investors to provide such bid- and ask-prices for specific order or securities volumes, and there is no guarantee of a specific liquidity or of a specific spread (i.e. the difference between bid- and ask-prices), for which reason investors cannot rely on being able to purchase or sell the structured products on a specific date or at a specific price.

Issuer risk

The value of structured products may depend not only on the performance of the underlying(s), but also on the creditworthiness of the issuer/guarantor, which may change during the term of the structured product. The investor is exposed to the risk of default of the issuer/guarantor. For further information on the rating of Vontobel Holding AG or Bank Vontobel AG, please see the issuance programme.

Classification

In Switzerland, these financial instruments are considered structured products. They are not collective investment schemes within the meaning of the Swiss Federal Act on Collective Investment Schemes (CISA), and are therefore not subject to the regulations of the CISA or the supervision of the Swiss Financial Market Supervisory Authority FINMA.

This financial instrument is not an investment fund or an investment company as defined in Art. 2 of the law dated 19 May 2005 on investment companies (IUG, 951.30). The financial instrument is not subject to supervision by the Liechtenstein Financial Market Authority (FMA), and investors do not enjoy the investor protection provided by the IUG.
