Tax treatment in Switzerland

Swiss Income tax	For the purposes of direct federal tax, any coupons represent taxable investment income. All actual income earned on the sale or repayment of the Product is subject to taxation (pure differential taxation). The decisive factor is the difference between the acquisition and sale or repayment amount (converted into CHF at the respective daily exchange rate).
Swiss withholding tax	No Swiss withholding tax
Swiss Turnover Tax	Secondary market transactions are not subject to the Swiss turnover tax.
General Information	Transactions and payments relating to this Product may be subject to further (foreign) transaction taxes, duties and/or withholding taxes, in particular a withholding tax pursuant to the Section 871(m) of the US Internal Revenue Code. All payments from this Product will occur with any applicable taxes and duties deducted. The taxation mentioned is a non-binding and non-exhaustive summary of the applicable treatment of Swiss-domiciled private investors for tax purposes. The investor's specific circumstances, however, are not taken into account. We point out that Swiss and/or foreign tax law or the authoritative practice of Swiss and/or foreign tax authorities can change at any time or specify further tax or charge liabilities (possibly even with retrospective effect). Potential investors should have the tax effects of the purchase, holding, sale or repayment of this Product examined by their own tax adviser - especially with respect to the effects of taxation under another jurisdiction.

Prospects of Profit and Losses

The Product will be redeemed at the Nominal Value plus coupon(s) regardless of market developments. The profit opportunities for investors who purchase the Product at the Issue Price are therefore limited to the fixed Coupon. These investors do not incur losses as long as the Issuer (or the Guarantor) is able to redeem the Product and pay the Coupon(s). Otherwise, investors are at risk of losses, even total losses (see also Issuer risk below). Fees and costs for the purchase and holding of the Product are not included above.

Significant Risks for Investors

Secondary market risks

Under normal market conditions, the Issuer or the Lead Manager intend to post bid-prices on a regular basis. However, neither the Issuer nor the Lead Manager is under any obligation with respect to investors to provide such bid-prices for specific order or securities volumes, for which reason investors cannot rely on being able to sell the Product on a specific date or at a specific price. It should be noted that the Product may be quoted below the Issue Price during its term. Potential investors should be aware that not only changes in interest rates but also other factors such as a deterioration in the Issuer's creditworthiness may have a negative impact on the value of the Products.

Issuer risk

The value of the Products may depend on the creditworthiness of the Issuer, which may change during the term of the Products. The investor is exposed to the Issuer's default risk. The Issuer is not rated. As a bond, the Product is not subject to any deposit protection scheme.
